007 Heaven

We put Bond girl Bérénice Marlohe on our cover for your eyes only. And, uh, anyone else who saw it.

Thank you for making Bérénice Marlohe your November cover girl. She is the most beautiful Bond girl I have ever seen!

Joe Rzutkiewicz

Thanks, Joe! Your kind letter left our editor both shaken and stirred. (Mostly because he fell into a giant cement mixer outside our office. He stopped screaming an hour ago. Guess that means he's OK?)

G Is for Stupid

Gentlemen (and I definitely use the term loosely): On the November cover, you say you couldn't come up with another G word for Bond besides "gorillas." Have you forgotten what it takes to do his job? Balls—and the G word for that is guts. There ya go. Now I want a job at Maxim.

Phil Arons

You must be really good at crossword puzzles, Phil. Can you think of a four-letter word that describes you and starts with a D?

What the Buck?!

I was hunting deer from my tree stand when I pulled out the newest Maxim to pass the time. There was no wind, and I had my scent under control. All of a sudden a buck walks right in front of me, but before I could draw my bow he sticks his nose in the air and bolts. Clueless as to why he left in such a hurry, I swat away a bug with the magazine. Then I realize your damn stinky perfume ads totally blew my cover!

YOU HAVE E-MAIL.

We have an in-box. Send your love and hate to: letters@maxim.com

I still love you, but until you man up you can't come hunting with me again.

Kevin Bobbins

Sorry, Kev! Funny, we got a thank-you note in the mail from that deer. At least we think it was a thank-you note. It was a turd with an acorn pressed into it. Anyone out there read deer?

Child's Play

The chess move Wladimir Klitschko describes on page 28 [How To, November] is called a fool's mate and should be used only on a beginner or a child—anyone else would see it coming. It's easy to block and puts your queen in a bad location for a second move. P.S. If you have any models who want to play me at strip chess, I'm available.

George Davis

Sorry, no models replied to your offer. You'll have to settle for battling the bishop again.

Dial-a-Reader

JOSE LUIS SANCHEZ

(above) had a bone to pick with us for naming Black's Beach the best nude beach. "I'd rather go to Haulover Beach in Bal Harbour, Florida," he wrote. We gave him a call.

DAN BOVA: What's so hot about your nude beach?

JOSE: It's been legal since 1991. You have showers, rest rooms, beach chairs...

Is that sanitary? Sitting on chairs that other naked dudes were sitting on?

Everybody brings a towel.

Is it hard to resist checking out everybody's junk?

If you're not a regular. We guide new people. It's very easy to spot them.

What are the signs?

Well, the first one is if you're too white! The other one is some people get aroused. That kind of behavior is condemned. If we see activity like that, we're going to warn you first, then go to the cops next.

You call the boner police?

Only if they start playing with themselves or taking pictures.

Sunburned balls an issue?

You have to bring lotion.

Just don't slap it on too vigorously.

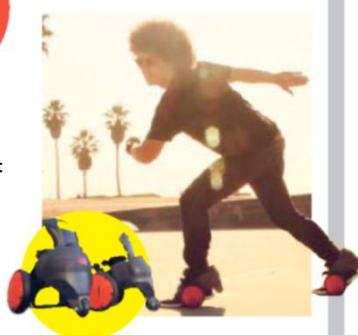

Yes! You want to be on your best behavior.

WE GOT IT IN THE MAIL

Rocket Skates

The publicist for spnKiX may as well have sent us a box of scissors and instructions to run, because sending a bunch of spazzy editors motorized skates is a great way to put someone in the ER. But did we let a potential worker's-comp suit stop us from strapping them on and tearing through the office at upwards of 10 mph? Of course not! And we have the bruises—and human-size dents in the wall—to prove it. Hopefully we get something less dangerous next time, like a machete-juggling kit.

Booty on the Ground

This is me and my guys on an OP we pulled 24 hours on a mountaintop in Afghanistan. We hauled the Maxim Salute to the Military and our unit flag up there to take a photo and stay entertained. Would have liked to get a better angle showing the valley, but we'd been engaged by Taliban that day and couldn't stand up to get a better shot! Hope you like it! Staff Sgt. Daniel Dyk, with Sgt. FC Bradshaw, Staff Sgt. Rosenfeld, Sgt. Whiteneck, Spc. Davino, Spc. Pepin, Spc. Rumbaut, and Tech Sgt. Waggs
We are honored to have been a part of your mission (especially from the comfort and safety of our desks). Get some!

Maxim-ness is Next to Godliness

Saw Beth Riesgraf ["Thief of Hearts"] in November's TOC. I admit I speed-read till I got to her. She's so sweet—proof there must be a grand design. OK, I'll renew.

Eric

Yes, Beth's existence does point to the fact that there is a God. On the eighth day He created Beth. And on the ninth He created the short-shorts she wore in the shoot. And it was good.

Stiff Competition

Read about bootlegger Popcorn Sutton ["The Last Hillbilly Hero," November], and with all the talk of sex and sex machines, it was quite a learning experience! What puzzled me was there's no mention of the raccoon dick or "Tennessee toothpick" on his hat on page 82. The raccoon's penis stays hard all the time. What a lucky animal! He undoubtedly had a good time with it!

John Tate

Yeah, undoubtedly. If that raccoon penis could talk, the stories it could tell. But how much do you want to hear about raccoon vaginas?

App-y Endings

I'm loving the Maxim Motion app! Once I stop wiggling in excitement long enough to get the thing to work, it's brilliant! Love it! Sincerely, a girl with a subscription.

Jillien

If wiggling persists, see a doctor. Or at least send us video.

Have You Met the Maxim Gimp?

The other day a wonderful package arrived at our office. No, it wasn't the kidney our intern Aaron so desperately needs to stay alive (sorry, bro, we eBayed it for beer money). It was something even better: a gimp! He was cold and hungry and dry-humped everything in sight, and, needless to say, we just love him to death.

We love our new gimp so much, in fact, that we gave him his own show on Maxim's new Xbox 360 channel. It's called "Nick & the Gimp" and follows the zany adventures of our leathery little pal and his surrogate dad, Maxim.com executive editor Nick Leftley. There will be laughs, there will be tears, and mostly there will be dry humping.

But that's just one of the shows we have waiting for you: There's insanely hot behind-the-scenes footage of Maxim shoots, ridiculous amounts of drinking, comedy, girls, and more girls. We have hours and hours of videos waiting for you and have new stuff going up every day. So download the Maxim app on your Xbox and kiss your worries (and productivity) goodbye!

Circus M

KICK-START

Caity Lotz

With three movies out this year—Battle of the Year: The Dream Team, Live at the Foxes Den, and The Machine—the former dancer has some big plans for 2013.

Revolutionizing Resolutions

“Don’t go writing down a ton of things you wanna do in January, not do them, and then a year later go, “Oh, yeah, let me look at those goals.” I’ll come up with these ideas like, “I’m gonna be a raw foodist!” and, “I’m building a teepee in my backyard to meditate in!” but it’s really better to pick just one thing and stick with it.”

Being a Big Pain at the Big Game

“I like to hang out with people who are really into the Super Bowl. I’ll usually root for the opposing team, because then you’re cheering when they’re booing, and they get mad at you. I like to get everybody riled up.”

Wearing Latex

“Winter is the season for indie movies. There’ll be some great ones you’ve never heard of that just kind of pop up. Like my movie The Machine. It’s gonna be sick. I play two different characters. One is a scientist and the other is a robot, so I had to bleach my eyebrows and shave my entire body. Plus, my hair is white, and

I wear these crazy skin-tight latex suits.”

Blowing Off V-Day

“I’m single right now, so I don’t give a shit about Valentine’s Day. But when I do have a boyfriend, I tend to give a shit about it, so he’d better do something really nice for me.”

Follow Caity on Twitter: @caitylotz.

BUSTED MOVES

What's the Worst Dance in History?

In honor of the disco's 50th anniversary, eight popular dance crazes go toe-to-toe to determine which move is stupidest of all. Step it up!

GAG REEL

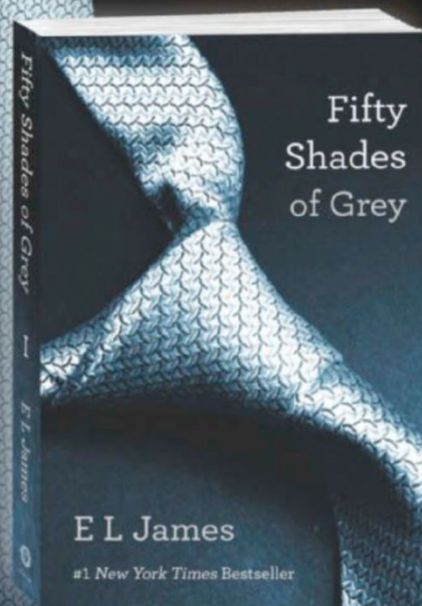

Porn Bloopers of the Month

Giving new meaning to the term anal retentive, we watch pornos and point out the mistakes.

In Revenge of the Petites, Coach Talon teaches first aid in a college health class by demonstrating the Heimlich maneuver on a female student. But in 2006 the American Red Cross revised choking-treatment protocol by downgrading the Heimlich for a more effective move that involves sharp blows to the back. Of course, after the demonstration the coach gave her a different kind of move from behind, but that wasn't really protocol, either. \$40, atkingdom.com

PAPAL ART

The (Holy) Mother of All Action Figures

Someone alert the Vatican...and tell them how awesome these Mary statues are!

Earn points with geeks and God by filling your shelves with these action-figure/religious-relic hybrids created by Soasig Chamailard. The French artist brings damaged Mother Mary statues back to life by melding them with pop-culture icons like Super Mario, My Little Pony, and Power Rangers. The sculptures, which cost between $1,230 and $7,750, are supposed to represent "love, advertising, consumption, and motherhood." To us they represent the one thing Mary and toy collectors have in common: virginity.

TALK TO THE HAND

The Future of Stupid Is Now!

And here we thought Bluetooth headsets were the douchiest way to talk on the phone. Proving us wrong: the hi-Fun Bluetooth glove. It has a speaker sewn into the thumb and a microphone in the pinkie so you can make calls from your hand and look incredibly dumb doing it. For added effect, wear a fax machine as a scarf. $65, hi-fun.com

FINAL DRAFT

Big Bang Beer

After the nuke hits, raise your glass and say cheers!

If you survive a nuclear bombing, you're going to want to relax with a cold one. But is radioactive beer safe to drink? In a recently uncovered U.S. government study from 1957 called "The Effect of Nuclear Explosions on Commercially Packaged Beverages," beer was blasted to test its post-bombing deliciousness. The result? It's OK to chug a nuked brew as long as you follow these rules.

Watch Your Kilotons

The beer survived nuclear blasts up to 30 kilotons (for reference, the A-bombs dropped during WWII were 22 kt and 15 kt). So if you're in an explosion that's less than 30 kt and your lips are still attached to your face, go for it.

Nuclear Hangover

While the suds had traces of radioactivity, scientists said it was safe to drink for "emergency use." That means a can or two is probably OK, but long-term bingeing might leave you with a hangover marked by nausea, headache, and bleeding eyeballs.

Don't Drink Local

The closer the brew was to the blast, the more "off" it tasted. So drink from kegs as far away from ground zero as possible—unless you like the burning sensation of peeing plutonium.

Kristen Hager

The werewolf from Being Human isn't as furry as we thought.

Tell us about Being Human.

It's a show by Syfy. The basic premise is a vampire, a ghost, and a werewolf live together in an apartment and struggle to maintain their humanity in day-to-day life.

That sounds like the worst roommate ad ever.

Yeah, and in this day and age I bet they exist out there!

As a werewolf on the show, just how hairy do you get?

I'll get fangs and claws, but there's no hair. I don't know if it's because I'm the girl on the show and they want to keep me as attractive as possible.

Considering all the sci-fi roles you've had (Wanted, Aliens vs. Predator: Requiem), can we assume you're into geeky guys?

Yeah, I like men who are smart. But what gets me more than anything is a sense of humor.

Let's play F/M/K: vampire, werewolf, and ghost. Go.

I'd fuck the vampire, marry the werewolf, and, well, you can't kill a ghost. But I'd exorcise it.

THE ULTIMATE EVENT FOR THRILL-SEEKING ATHLETES

Warrior Dash is a mud-crawling, fire-leaping, extreme run from hell. This fierce running series is held on the most challenging and rugged terrain across the globe. Warriors conquer extreme obstacles, push their limits and celebrate with kick-ass music, beer and Warrior helmets. Are you a Warrior?

WWW.WARRIORDASH.COM

So...who are they?

A quintet of young hotties who have been pummeling the U.K. for five years with infectious hits (note: there is no known cure). They have yet to break the U.S. market, but that should change as they storm our shores with the debut of the E! reality show Chasing the Saturdays. "It's about us trying to crack America, all day, every day," says Vanessa White, the youngest band member. "You really get to know us and our personalities." Also? Their drinking habits. These ladies like to party!

"I like how American guys don't hold back."

Why should you care?

Well, for starters, they're all super-hot and moved to Los Angeles together, so you know the odds of a sexy pillow fight are solidly in your favor. And if you like super-dancy pop tracks, they will keep your head bopping and toes tapping. (What your other body parts do is your business.)

Who's who?

"I think because of the Spice Girls, people want to label us," says Mollie King, the band's blonde beauty, who helps set the record straight: "Vanessa is the party girl, Rochelle is the big sister, Frankie's the biggest flirt you'll ever meet, and Una is the feisty, passionate one."

Do you have a shot with them?

Unfortunately, four of the five members are currently spoken for, but Mollie's single and has a thing for Yanks. "I love American guys!" she says. "For one thing, they're very good-looking. British guys tend to be reserved. I like how Americans don't hold back. So, yeah, I love the American guys. I need to meet one!" Gentlemen, the challenge has been issued. Do your nation proud!

Who the F@#k Are the Saturdays?

These five British bombshells are about to invade America's earholes. We surrender!

Chasing the Saturdays premieres January 20 on E!

CÎROC® CELEBRATES OUR TROOPS!

CÎROC® Ultra Premium Vodka and Maxim congratulate Christopher Minaya, winner of the CÎROC® Americano Ambassador Search.

For Christopher Minaya, former Marine Corps Captain of Cedar Grove, NJ, Veteran's Day was one that won't soon be forgotten. As the winner of the CÎROC® Americano Ambassador Search, Chris was celebrated by Maxim and CÎROC® Ultra Premium Vodka at Maxim's Headquarters in New York City.

"Serving in the military has made me appreciate this country and the freedom that I now enjoy as a Veteran. I am proud of who I am and what I have become. I have confidence in myself and all that I do. Being in the military builds discipline, character and patience, and because of this, I look forward to success in my position as CÎROC Military Ambassador."

Super Punch Bowl

No matter who you're rooting for, this communal drink from mixologist BRITTANY BAUMGARDNER at One Bellevue in Newport, RI, will move the chains at your big game bash. First and yum!

Super Bowl Sangria

- 1/2 bottle Evan Williams bourbon
- 1 bottle red wine
- 1/4 bottle triple sec
- 3 cans ginger beer
- 15 oz. pineapple juice
- Sliced pineapple for garnish

Chill all ingredients. Dump 'em in a bowl, mix, and float in pineapples. Serve over ice and lift the glass to your lips so punch goes in your mouth. Jesus, do we have to tell you how to do everything?

Little tip: Stop drinking when your pee turns the same color.

BAR TRICK FILE NO. 245

Field Goal

You'll need:

- 4 straws
- 1 olive
- 1 semi-idiotic friend

- 1 Arrange straws in the shape of a goalpost and place the olive in the middle.

- 2 Tell your friend he has to remove the olive from the goalpost without touching the olive and only moving two straws, while keeping the same shape of the post. Unless your friend is a geometrist, he'll probably fumble.

- 3 Rub your wits in his face by pushing the horizontal straw halfway to the left and moving the upper right straw to the lower left side, thus completing the task and making your semi-idiotic friend feel fully idiotic. Success!

The Saint, New Orleans

Walk through the doors of this dreary watering hole and you'll be greeted by a sea of tattooed tough guys. But that, combined with the Saint's low ceilings and scratched-up walls, only adds to the prisonlike feel of a joint you'd be happy doing time in. Since it doesn't close till sunrise, you'll have plenty of time to make someone your bitch. 961 Saint Mary St. Open 8 P.M. to 6 A.M.

Warning: Patrons asking for white-wine spritzers will be shot.

24 Hours to Live

William Shatner

He's been Captain Kirk, T.J. Hooker, and the go-to guy for getting a great price on a flight. Now he's boldly going to the great beyond.

You're currently touring 13 cities with your one-man show, Shatner's World: We Just Live in It. Do you have any deathbed confessions you don't reveal in the performance?

Yes, I do have a deathbed confession. Lean in and let me whisper it in your ear: "I want to live!"

Will you be going to heaven or hell, and why?

I am actually on my way to limbo. I can't make up my mind whether to have Vegas fun or joyful lassitude.

If you go to heaven, will you use Priceline to get a good deal on a cloud?

Of course I'll use Priceline to get a cloud. But of course, you have to go through iCloud to get a cloud, which sometimes clouds your memory. And don't forget, there is a crowd in that cloud.

What song plays as you die? Your incredible version of Elton John's "Rocket Man"?

There is a cacophony of some of my best hits.

Was there anyone on Earth you wanted to punch in the face?

I am on my deathbed. Lean in, I want to whisper something to you. Smack! Right in the ear.

While alive, what did you spend the most cash on?

Wives and horses, and not necessarily in that order.

What's the wildest thing you ever did while you were alive? Anything T.J. Hooker could arrest you for?

While I was alive, I clung to life as fiercely as Hooker clung to the windshield wiper.

How would you want to be saved, Rescue 911 style?

I'd like a helicopter to lift me out of a crevasse the way they do horses. And, by the way, up your crevasse.

If you could come back and spy on someone who's still alive, who would it be, and why?

My wife. I'd make sure she's not having too much fun.

James T. Kirk famously got it on with many hot alien babes. What woman did you always want to sleep with?

There was a three-breasted alien who really turned me on, but it has been unrequited.

When all is said and done, who was the better captain of the Enterprise, Kirk or Picard?

That is a difficult question, because in each case the ship exploded.

What are people saying over your casket?

"What a cheap coffin."

Name one thing you're glad you'll never have to do again on Earth. Give the Vulcan salute?

I can't separate my fingers the way Leonard Nimoy does. Mine always seems to be a clenched fist. Lean in, I want to tell you something...

Write your epitaph.

I did one too many interviews.

When I'm sloppy drunk, why do I want to keep drinking?

Rick Lesly

'Cause you're drunk! "Alcohol suppresses the brain's frontal lobes, making it harder for us to make good choices," says Aaron White, an alcoholism researcher. That's also why it seemed like a good idea to take home that sexy babe with the enormous Adam's apple.

Do animals ever commit suicide?

Mike Avra

Scientists suggest that some animals off themselves in captivity or in response to drugs, but the theories haven't been proved, says Duncan Wilson, a biologist at the University of Manchester. So you're saying our pet hamster shot himself accidentally? What a relief!

Meanwhile, a Beatle was destroying a nearby stall. Jesus, Ringo, ever hear of a courtesy flush?

GOT A QUESTION?
Send it to ask@maxim.com

Sometimes when I pee, I get an involuntary shake. Is that normal?

Brian Smith

You sure it's not your hands shaking from the excitement of making it to the bathroom on time? Then it's probably just nerves. "That shaking sensation is a reflex that occurs between the nerves that run to the bladder through the spine and are ultimately controlled by the brain, so it's not a sign of a serious problem," says Evangelos G. Geraniotis, M.D., of the Urology Associates of Cape Cod. Although it might feel strange, don't piss your pants worrying about it.

Jokes

A male patient is lying in bed in the hospital, wearing an oxygen mask over his mouth and nose. A young student nurse appears and gives him a partial sponge bath. "Nurse," he mumbles from behind the mask, "are my testicles black?" Embarrassed, she replies, "I don't know, sir. I'm here only to wash your upper body and feet." He struggles to ask again: "Nurse, please check for me. Are my testicles black?" Concerned, she overcomes her embarrassment and pulls back the covers. She raises his gown, holds his manhood in one hand and his testicles in the other. She looks very closely and says, "Don't worry, sir. They look fine." The man slowly pulls off his oxygen mask, smiles at her, and says very slowly, "Thank you very much. That was wonderful. Now listen very, very closely: Are my test results back?" JOE EAKLE, MASSEPEQUA, NY

A girl from Texas and a girl from New York are seated side by side on an airplane. The girl from Texas, being friendly and all, asks, "So where y'all from?" The girl from New York says, "From a place where they know better than to use a preposition at the end of a sentence." The girl from Texas sits quietly for a few moments and then replies, "So where y'all from, bitch?" TIM LYONS, JACKSON HOLE, WY

Be a Global Viral Superstar

"Gangnam Style" guru PSY explains how you too can create a song-and-dance sensation that's catchier than bird flu.

Hey, sexy ladies, "Gangnam Style" is the most-watched YouTube video ever!

1 Go electric.
"Around the world it's all about electronica, right? Beatwise, make it catchy and include a pause. It's total silence, but it says, 'Oh, my God, it's coming!'"

2 Forget the language.
"Even if audiences have no idea what I'm talking about, they look so happy when they hear 'Gangnam Style.' I saw a flash mob in Italy with 20,000 people, and they sang every part. It's a nonverbal thing."

3 The dance is key.
"I spent so many nights with my Korean choreographers, I can't even count. We tried everything that exists in the universe—falling leaves, snakes, animals, whatever—before we discovered the horse."

4 Respect "Macarena."
"People compare 'Gangnam Style' to 'Macarena,' but honestly 'Macarena' was stronger, because at that time we didn't have YouTube or Twitter or anything. YouTube is kind of a shortcut to going viral worldwide."

5 Be replicable.
"If you're some chubby guy with a tux wearing sunglasses and doing 'Gangnam Style,' you're Psy. Whenever there's a flash mob in any country, there's one leader, and it's chubby tux guy."

Go Hog Wild

Shameless star WILLIAM H. MACY takes a break from playing an irresponsible patriarch to hit the open road.

DON'T BE A TOUGH GUY

"Visualize yourself bouncing along the highway at 50 mph with no motorcycle and dress accordingly. I wear chaps, which are good even in the heat. If it's cold, get an electric suit that you can plug into your bike to warm up."

SKIP THE TUNES

"There you are, feeling like Evel Knievel, and fucking Enya comes on. To get to your iPod and change the thing is a pain in the ass, so I have a tendency to ride in silence."

HIDE THE PLAN

"Draw up a good plan, then throw it in your saddlebag. That way when you're hopelessly lost and it's getting dark and the temperature is dropping quickly, you can dig it out and figure out where the hell you are and try to get to shelter."

ASSUME YOU'RE GOING TO DIE

"If you think a stop sign will get someone to stop, don't ride a bike. Just assume that everyone is going to do something that might kill you. It's not for the faint of heart."

Have a Ball-Licking Good Time

Best in Show's FRED WILLARD has one piece of advice for enjoying the Westminster Kennel Club Dog Show.

"Remember, it's 90 percent mental. Good looks count, but a dog has to be disciplined to win. When they're in the spotlight and people are applauding, the dogs have to concentrate like players during a game, because there's a lot of judgment. (Although, in the dogs' cases, that involves a lot more poking and prodding.)"

The WKC Dog Show airs live February 11–12 on CNBC and USA.

Wild Turkey
associate distiller
EDDIE RUSSELL
on how to become a bourbon baron.

BE SWEET

"Know what type of bourbon you're making before you start. If you want a bolder, spicier bourbon, use more rye in your mash. If you want a sweeter bourbon, use more corn. Find a niche so you're not like everyone else—right now I'd move to the sweeter side."

BE PATIENT

"It'll be five years before you have a bourbon you can sell. You can put out a two-year-old to get some income in, but if it's not good people might have a bad opinion of your brand. Just sell the young stuff as 'straight whiskey' instead of calling it bourbon."

BE CREATIVE

"Having a business degree is great, but in terms of making whiskey, there are so many different things involved. Sometimes you're an engineer or a chemist. It's best to go in with someone with experience in distilling, who understands what making whiskey is all about."

Make a Hangover Helper

ADAM RICHMAN, a man who's overdone it once or twice, explains how to make the Ultimate Booze Flu Cure for the most painful 24 hours of the year: New Year's Day.

1. Bottom Bread
Go with a brioche bun or even an old-school kaiser roll, brushed with some salted butter and grilled.

2. Meat
A piece of medium-rare skirt steak.

3. Eggs
On top of that go two fried eggs with runny yolks.

4. Spices and Sauce
Next, sea salt—preferably Maldon—and fresh black pepper. Then the green cilantro sauce from Brasa restaurant in Minneapolis.

5. Bacon
Two strips of applewood-smoked bacon, but cut each in half to make four. And make sure they're a thick cut—no wimpy bacon.

6. Cheese
On that bacon, melt American cheese and white cheddar.

7. Avocado
Sliced, really ripe, bright green, and super creamy. Then on top of that, another slight sprinkling of sea salt.

8. Hot Sauce
There's a specific hot sauce out of Portland, Oregon called Secret Aardvark. I would do a drizzle of that.

9. Top Bread
Twist that sandwich down so the egg yolk mixes with the other sauces and coats the bacon and beef below it.

10. Side Order?
You could also put them in the sandwich, but a side of good diner French fries—the thickness of a man's finger—and a fountain Coca-Cola. A big-ass Coke, which will probably taste better if served in one of those big red plastic cups you get at a pizzeria.

NFL linebackers need serious strength and power (not to mention a good hug every now and then). Trainer Ken Vick, who's also worked with the L.A. Kings, gives you the key moves from Miller's strength-training regimen to add to your weekly routine. Time to crush!

DAY 1

Add these to your chest-shoulder routine.

Hang Power Clean

Start out holding the bar in front of your quads. Using your legs and hips, jump the weight to your shoulders. Do five sets of three reps at 80 percent of your maximum load.

Dumbbell Bench Press

Lie down on a bench with your feet touching the ground. Position the dumbbells at either side of your chest, with your arms bent. Focus on keeping your shoulder blades back and down for a slow, controlled movement. Do five sets of five reps at your max weight.

DAY 2

Add these to your squat and ab routines.

Bulgarian Split Squat

Stand a few feet in front of a bench. Lift one leg behind you so your toes are on the bench. Lower your body as if you were doing a regular squat, and make sure to keep your heel flat. Do five sets of five reps for each leg.

Front Plank

Lie on your stomach with your arms tucked at your sides. Keep your legs straight and tuck in your toes. With palms down and your core rigid, lift your torso and thighs up. Face the floor and hold for 30 seconds. Do four sets.

Turn Your Copy of Maxim Into Body Armor

Inmate and Gorilla Convict.com founder SETH FERRANTI explains how to make yourself stab-proof.

1 "In the joint, magazines can be the difference between life and death if someone shanks you. Start by stacking a few together to create two or three layers. The thicker the better."

2 "If you don't have tape, rip up bed-sheets and use them to tie the mags around your body. Make sure they're not too bulky: If officers think you have something under your shirt, they'll stop you and find your armor and your shank."

3 "Tape or tie the layers to vital areas. You don't wanna get shanked in the nuts! Guys will tape 'em to their back and sides, too, but if you have only one stack, cover your chest."

rump roast sale at Stop & Shop!”

Build a Cincinnati Fire Kite

William Gurstelle, author of Backyard Ballistics, teaches you how to have (legal?) fun with fire and newspaper.

You'll need:

- One full sheet of newspaper
- Tape
- Four lighters or packs of matches
- A clearing with no trees, utility poles, dry grass, or oil spills
- A fire extinguisher

1 Fold the newspaper as shown.

2 At the point where the four corners meet, tape the paper together to form the pillow-shaped kite. Adjust the kite so all edges align as closely as possible, using more tape if needed. Now take the kite outside—it's ready to burn!

3 Make sure the paper seams are on the bottom. With an assistant or two, light each corner at the same time.

4 If you haven't screwed it up, the kite should burn slowly as it rises (as much as 30 feet), charring up along the way. It may look like a UFO from a distance. Tell people you're bros with E.T.

Black Dynamite

The BUICK GRAND NATIONAL was the most badass car of the 1980s, and hardcore gearheads are still obsessed.

He's late for the REO Speedwagon show.

It breathed fire, crapped thunder, and came in only one color: black. Sure, the Buick Grand National had the same boxy body as grandma's Cutlass, but make no mistake: This beast was revolutionary. After the muscle-car era of the late '60s and early '70s, American cars pretty much sucked, with high gas prices and tough emissions standards leading to smaller, less powerful engines and all-around shittiness (google "AMC Pacer" for proof).

In a stroke of mad automotive genius, however, Buick engineers turbocharged, intercooled, and fuel-injected a relatively small six-cylinder engine and were able to pump out enough raw power to produce a car that beat Ferraris off the line. Fast-forward 25 years, and everyone from documentary filmmakers to auto collectors are still in awe of the black sheep of the GM family. But be warned if you are looking to buy one. As one proud owner told us, "Check the backseats, because if you had a Grand National in the '80s, you got laid."

Grand Slam

Maxim crashed a Grand National gathering in a fast food parking lot. Yes, it was as awesome as it sounds.

We drove a 2012 Buick Regal GS—the Grand National's closest living relative—to a Red Robin in Neshaminy, Pennsylvania, where 22 shiny black cars (and their proud owners) welcomed us with open hoods. "The Grand National really was the working man's muscle car," explained Jim Chaudrue, the Pennsylvania representative of MAGNA, the Mid-Atlantic Grand National Association, about the world's continuing obsession with an over-25-year-old car. "They were so far advanced, nothing could touch them for years. They're still feared on the streets!" After ogling the cars—most of which looked like they just rolled off the assembly line—and scarfing down burgers, we got behind the wheel of Jim's '87 (he also has an '86) for a drive around the block. Compared to the almost-as-quick

"You got fat" said
the Grand National.

(0-60 in the mid-sixes) but far-more-refined Regal GS, the Grand National was a monster. Traffic laws may or may not have been broken on our cruise. As we pulled back into the lot—the car somehow still in one piece—Jim asked the question that was apparently foremost on the minds of the MAGNA members: "So none of the Maxim girls are coming down? Everyone's asking!"

THE ONE TO WATCH
2013

For seven sexy and hilarious years on 30 Rock, Katrina Bowden has routinely turned the viewing public into drooling messes. Sadly, this is the final season of the Tina Fey wonder show, but luckily Katrina is just getting started. So don't toss that drool mop away just yet, friends, there's more Katrina to come!

by DAVID SWANSON photographs by MATT JONES

When Katrina Bowden auditioned for the role of Liz Lemon's assistant, Cerie, on 30 Rock, she was a 16-year-old Catholic school girl with no experience in comedy. (We'd like to take a moment to say something to the person who took a chance casting the then-unknown Katrina: Thank you! Thank you! Thank you!) For seven years now she has given more than a few extra smiles to one of the funniest shows in TV history, which wraps its glorious run this spring. "It's so weird that it's ending," she says. "I was so young and inexperienced when the show started, and the cast has basically been like family to me." Here's to her next big role—may it have an even tinier wardrobe!

Sweater

Lingerie
Kiki de Montparnasse
Jewelry
Iosselliani

When you started off on 30 Rock, did you have any idea you'd still be on seven years later?

None. We didn't even know we were going to get a second season. We always had critical acclaim, but it seemed like no one was watching, and if you don't have any viewers, it doesn't matter how many Emmys you win. It was when Tina went back on SNL as Sarah Palin that people really got interested.

Since 30 Rock was based on Tina's time there, is Cerie based on someone real?

Yeah, a very wealthy girl who was really smart but never let anyone know that. And she never really tried hard, because she'd been given everything her whole life. So I think they took that and made it a lot bigger with Cerie.

How different is Tracy Morgan from Tracy Jordan?

Well, Tracy's a comedian, so he knows what he's doing, but the writing staff definitely plays up the wacky things he says. They give him complicated things to say, because it sounds so funny coming out of his mouth. He's a sweet guy, but he has absolutely no filter. His dressing room is right next to mine, so I end up hearing a lot of very interesting conversations!

Was it strange being so much younger than the rest of the cast?

At first I felt like I was in over my head, but everyone made me feel so comfortable. I'd hang out with the people from the show and go to SNL tapings and the after-parties, and a lot of the writers were young. Like, Donald Glover wrote for the show before he was on Community, and he's just a little older than me. But it's not like I was going crazy and partying, which might have been different if I'd been on a show with lots of young people, like Gossip Girl.

Since you were just out of high school, were your classmates ever jealous?

Well, I had been modeling for a bit in high school, and I tried to keep all that stuff quiet. I went to an all-girls school, and girls can get pretty catty toward each other.

Don't you want to go to your reunion and rub your success in their faces?

Oh, my God, no! That would be like a nightmare for me. I have absolutely zero desire to ever go back to my high school.

From the looks of these pictures, it seems like you still enjoy modeling.

I had such a great time doing this shoot, even more than the last time I did Maxim, since I knew everybody. It's still cute, but it's a little edgier this time.

Your boyfriend proposed to you right after your first Maxim cover came out. Do you think he was trying to lock you down?

Ha! I think he wanted to propose for a while, but that may have made him want to seal the deal.

So are we invited to the wedding?

Sure! After all, you guys may have sped things along.

What are your plans once the show wraps?

I don't know, but I'm definitely excited for a new chapter. I'd love to do a completely different kind of show, like Breaking Bad or Homeland. I'm really open to anything, whether it's TV or more films.

Is it weird knowing that for the rest of your life you'll be turning on the TV and seeing your face?

Now that we're syndicated, there are reruns, like, three or four times a night. It's crazy! It becomes this weird timeline where I can tell what point of the shooting process we were at based on how everyone looks, like, did I have bangs? Or what baseball cap Judah Friedlander's wearing.

Were there any embarrassing moments on set?

There were moments where I didn't get references because I'm younger. One time we filmed an episode at Kenneth's apartment, and Jack McBrayer, who plays Kenneth, had filled it with real photos of his family and also decades of TV memorabilia he'd collected. So I pick up this photo of four old women and ask Jack if they were his aunts, and Judah, who was there, was like, "Are you serious? Those are the Golden Girls!" I was like, "Oh, my God, I guess I really am a lot younger." ■

“IF A GUY IS ABLE TO BE HIMSELF, HE HAS A GOOD CHANCE WITH ME.”

Congratulations! What was your first reaction when you found out you had won?

I thought I would pee! I'm so excited and happy and can't wait to thank everyone who's been supporting me along the way.

Who gets the news before the rest of the world?

Definitely my mom. She was thrilled when I told her I was a finalist, and she's always very supportive of me. Then my dad and then my older brother. He was more hesitant about my entering the competition than anyone else.

Understandably, because now he's going to have to deal with all these guys trying to snag a date with you.

It's funny. He was in a staff meeting, and his colleagues were discussing what they can't talk about in the workplace. One of his coworkers stood up and said,

“You can't talk about his sister!”

He gets stuff about it all the time, but I know he's happy for me.

What made you decide to enter the competition?

Being in Maxim has always been one of my main goals in terms of modeling. As soon as I turned 21, that's what I wanted to do, so I am extremely proud and excited to get to represent the magazine.

You don't think all the accolades will go to your head? You can yell and scream at us. It's cool.

No. I don't ever look at myself in that way. I see myself as Dessie who lives in Apollo, Pennsylvania. When I'm at home or work, I don't really wear a lot of makeup, and I like to have fun and be comfortable and not always worry about my appearance. But I can look good when I want to!

Was there any moment in the competition when you thought, Wow, I can't believe this is happening?

The week in Vegas with all the other finalists was the experience of a lifetime. The shoots were awesome, but my favorite part was meeting all the other girls, because we got along so well.

What's your message to all the fans who voted for you?

Thank you for being so respectful and encouraging! You guys kept me going.

We hear you're single. Would you ever date a Maxim guy?

Definitely! With me it's pretty much what you see is what you get, so as long as a guy can be himself and be honest with himself, he has a good chance with me. 🐶

SWORDS & SILK

They say revenge is a dish best served cold, but in SPARTACUS: VENGEANCE, it's served smokin' hot. Sexy stars Ellen Hollman (a.k.a. Saxa), Cynthia Addai-Robinson (a.k.a. Naevia), and Gwendoline Taylor (a.k.a. Sibyl) were nice enough to tell us about the final season of their sword-, sandal-, and sex-filled show...without kicking our asses.

HOMETOWN Detroit

BIRTHDAY April 1

What's your favorite part about shooting Spartacus: Vengeance?

Doing my own stunts and choreographing my own fight scenes. I did a lot of knife training with reverse-grip double daggers. You take two daggers, reverse the grip, and then just fuck shit up, basically.

You had to flip a 220-pound dude over your head in a scene. How was that?

My life may or may not have flashed before my eyes a few times. It was a thrill, though.

Has there been anything on the show you were glad you didn't have to do?

Oh, yeah. My character has dabbled in just about every graphic category across the board, but some people got it worse in the vulgarity department than I did.

How does Spartacus compare to other shows you've done?

Spartacus stands alone in that it's like shooting a movie every three weeks for seven months straight. I've never experienced anything in my life quite like it.

How has your character, Saxa, evolved over the course of the series?

Saxa has gone from feisty kitten to fierce lioness. She's grown into her paws and is bigger and badder, giving the guys a run for their money.

CYNTHIA ADDAI-ROBINSON

Naevia

HOMETOWN Washington, D.C.

BIRTHDAY January 12

What was the most fun thing for you about filming the show?

The character I'm playing, Naevia, was learning how to fight last season. Now she's caught up and fighting alongside all the men. It's pretty fun.

What do you do to get yourself ready for shooting sex scenes?

Wine is always helpful. We try to keep it light, and there's always a lot of laughter to help take the edge off. But it probably looks more fun than it actually is.

Has there ever been anything on the set that freaked you out completely?

We have a pretty extreme environment on the show, this season especially. I definitely had a couple of scenes where things lit on fire, and I was just hoping to finish the day with no major injuries.

The show is very sexy. You think there will be any Spartacus babies as a result?

We have a very good-looking group of people. The show's elements—the wardrobe, the fight sequences—come together to make a steamy night of TV viewing. I know a lot of couples use the show as a way to keep it spicy in the bedroom.

What's your biggest turnoff?

I'm not a fan of whistles and whispers. Those kinds of things drive me nuts and they never work.

Are you single?

I'll leave that one blank.

BIRTHDAY November 7

What's been your most embarrassing moment on set?

Probably flashing everyone on my first day. I was pulling my costume down and accidentally pulled it up in back, so all the extras saw my butt. It was the first thing I learned about the show: It's easier to take it all off than to cover yourself up.

What do you do to stay in shape?

I'll do about two or three dance classes a week, and I go to the gym every day. I really like getting out on my Rollerblades, too, even though I suck at them.

Do you have a favorite body part?

I would say my legs. The costume department decided that my legs needed showing off, so when I put my costume on for the first time, they ripped the side of it right up to under my ass. Costume designers have an eye for what your best asset is.

What's the worst pickup line you've ever heard?

"Would you like a raisin?" "No." "Well, then how about a date?"

What's been the sexiest part of the show for you?

Getting dirtied up after having my pretty makeup on. It just looks really sexy. I don't know why. Apparently, dirty works.

We enjoy bikinis. What inspired you to start your swimwear line, G. Dias?

I was always on shoots in swimwear and lingerie, and I wanted to create a brand that was sexy and sophisticated.

That sounds like you!

There's nothing more powerful than a woman who is confident in what she's wearing. I don't feel hot all the time, but I'm very confident. I'm South American—fire and passion are a big part of my culture.

What's the hottest photo shoot you've ever done?

I think the ones for G. Dias. It's very sexy to wear a bikini top that shows the sides of the breasts. In America people sometimes hide. But in Brazil it's, like, all about the butt. Having curves is beautiful.

Tell us about the movie you have coming out this year, Emanuel and the Truth About Fishes.

They cast me because I look similar to Jessica Biel, who also stars in the movie. Who doesn't want to look like Jessica Biel? She's gorgeous!

What are some of your indulgences?

I love chocolate, my dog, and going to the beach, and I wouldn't be Brazilian if I didn't like dancing. But I don't go out to nightclubs.

So you're not really the party-girl type?

I don't think I'm boring, but I'm not a big party girl, because I have too much work. When I go out, it's a treat.

You like to box. How badly can you kick a guy's ass?

I'm pretty good. Depending on the guy, he could get hurt. But I'm a nice person! I've never been in a real fight.

Do guys use the fact that you're Brazilian as a conversation starter?

Oh, yes. "I noticed an accent!" But it's OK. When a guy hits on me, it feels good. 🍷

5,000 WOMEN WANT YOU

(TO KNOW WHAT THEY WANT IN BED!)

Photographs by ERIC RAY DAVIDSON

We all know what dudes want when it comes to sex (mainly, to have it), but what about our prettier, boobier counterparts? We asked thousands of women[★] about their naughtiest, most intimate sex habits, and instead of zapping us with Tasers, they actually gave us answers! Read on to see what our saucy survey takers (ages 18 to 40) had to say about threesomes, boning in public, tweeting during sex, and more!

Over 2,000 guys took this survey for some reason. Don't worry, we threw out their answers. But sadly, we can't erase the mental images of their masturbation habits.

How often do you daydream about sex?

- Once a week. 12.6%
- Once a day. 41.4%
- Three to four times a day. 37.3%
- Sorry, what was the question? I was daydreaming about sex. 8.7%

How often do you masturbate?

- Once a month. 13.0%
- Once a week. 23.0%
- A few times a week. 45.1%
- Every day. 11.6%
- Never. 7.3%

The secret sign I'm into a guy is:

We got more than we bargained for (namely, a face tattoo) when we spent a booze- and stripper-filled night with the hard-living dudes from Pawn Stars.

by JULIAN STERN photographs by TIFFANY BROWN

It's 1 A.M. in Vegas, and my open mouth is on the receiving end of a very real, very scary tattoo gun. Corey "Big Hoss" Harrison looks on with glee. I'm learning a lesson the hard way: When you negotiate with a Pawn Star, you lose.

THE CHUM DIARIES

Nine hours earlier, I'd arrived at Gold & Silver Pawn, Corey's workplace and the subject of History Channel's hit reality show Pawn Stars. Corey works at the shop with his dad, Rick, granddad Richard, and childhood friend, the mononymous Chumlee, bickering, haggling, and ultimately making bank on the coolest antiques and most obscure collectibles Vegas has to offer. After five seasons and almost four years, the breakout hit has grown from two million viewers to five, becoming History's most-watched program and spinning off three shows—Cajun Pawn Stars, American Restoration, and Counting Cars—with an international version, Pawn Stars UK, in the works.

I'm spending an evening with these guys to find out what happens when the cameras are off. They want to take Maxim out to do Vegas local style, but before we head off, there's business to be done.

Corey and Rick, the 47-year-old head honcho at Gold & Silver, are appraising a customer's Civil War journal. Surrounding them is a small army of a film crew, documenting the barter from every angle. The owner wants $12,000. Rick, in true Rick fashion, will have none of that. My reality-show skepticism is on high alert, but outside of some retakes for clarity, it all feels authentic. I stay out of their way and browse the shop, which is packed with eye-catching sale items: samurai swords, guitars, a World War II Indian motorcycle, and even a car, a 1949 Hudson. There's also art all over: portraits of everyone from John Lennon to Jackie Kennedy to...Chumlee?

On the screen Austin "Chumlee" Russell is as much the show's breakout star as he is the village idiot. Chum won't be along for tonight's ride, as we're heading out a bit early for his taste ("I start my night at one o'clock"), but I get a chance to catch up with him at the shop. For better or for worse, he's not the dolt he's made out to be on the show. He's the first to admit his situation is surreal. "I never expected my face to be on the side of a building to draw people in." While he enjoys the opportunities the show has afforded him, he's not just sitting back. "I've got other things I'm workin' on that will hopefully outlast the show...and me," he says. "One of my goals is to work on things that could outlast my life span."

Back on the floor, Rick has called in his rare-book expert, Rebecca Romney, to give her two cents on the journal. All the experts on the show are truly experts, and Rick calls them out of necessity, not just for good TV. "I can't know everything," he admits. Rebecca, the manager of the Las Vegas Gallery of Bauman Rare Books, has appraised the journal and left Rick and Corey to strike a deal with the customer. After some back and forth, they've scored the journal for $5,000 and the three of us are en route to dinner.

GROUPIE LOVE

The Foundation Room is an ornately decorated, members-only club that sits at the top of Mandalay Bay Resort & Casino. Rick and Corey are both members, and this is the place they'll bring History Channel execs, out-of-towners, and anyone else they might want to shield from Pawn Stars groupies. Yes, there are groupies.

As we get off the elevator, a fan attempts to mask his excitement at seeing the guys, but not everyone is so good at keeping their cool. Over the course of the night, reactions range from a simple handshake and "I love the show" to desperate pleas for photo ops. "I never leave the house unless I'm like this," Rick says, gesturing to his hat and sunglasses. "It cuts, like, 80 or 90 percent of it."

1. Rick and Corey enjoy some fancy grub with their bartering bucks at The Foundation Room. 2. Hydrating at the Double Down Saloon, Rick's local since he moved to Vegas more than 20 years ago. 3. The surprisingly delicious "Ass Juice" is the specialty of the house. 4. The guys make a toast to Julian, our intrepid writer who, at this point, has no clue where the night is going. 5. The enthusiastic bartender at Hogs & Heifers surely has an advanced degree in mixology. 6. A fan gives the traditional Vegas mating sign.

We sit down to munch on lobster tacos, shrimp and grits, and truffle mac and cheese, and Rick's wide-ranging knowledge reveals itself over the course of the meal—the genesis of the term sharpshooter, the history of mercury poisoning, a few tidbits on the domestication of Indian elephants—and I realize he actually knows this stuff; there's no producer feeding him facts. "I just love obscure history books," he shrugs. "You're talking to the guy who read the history of batteries twice. All this weird, stupid shit comes together in the show." Corey chimes in: "Or he'll force it in. It'll be the only item we have that day, and he'll use the whole six degrees of separation to get to what he read last night and wants to talk about."

DOUBLE THE PLEASURE

"I saw my first dead body at the Double Down." We've ditched the Foundation Room, put the Strip in our rearview, and are headed to the Double Down Saloon, a punk-rock bar that Rick boasts has been named the number one dive in America. Corey is giving me what, I think, he believes is a stellar review of the place. We pull up in front of a white cinder block building with a message painted across the entryway: THE HAPPIEST PLACE ON EARTH. Corey adds, earnestly, "Now, if you have to take a piss, I suggest you go behind the Dumpster and not to the bathroom." I think I'll hold it.

This place is a far cry from the Foundation Room. Above the bar, a sign advertises a service I've never seen before: PUKE INSURANCE, $20: SEE BARTENDER FOR DETAILS. Rick explains that if you pay the insurance, then vomit on the bar, you don't have to clean it up. The bartender sees it in simpler terms: "If I'm about to cut you off, you have to pay me to keep drinking." Corey buys us a round of Double Down's famous Ass Juice shots, which yet another sign describes thusly: OUTA' OUR ASS, INTA' YOUR GLASS. Delicious!

of a bra-covered wall and shouts into her megaphone, "Welcome to Hogs & Heifers, motherfuckers!" Rick tells me the movie Coyote Ugly was based on this bar, and this does not surprise me. He orders a round of PBR tallboys, Corey pops a 20 into an arcade punching machine that resembles a speed bag, and we go to town. My embarrassing scores are made only more so by the fact that Corey invites some onlookers, probably fans, to take a swing or two. Bikers, cowboys, and even a few girls all double or triple my measly 243, some even hitting the 900s.

It's 10 o'clock and time for Rick to go home to his fiancée and three soon-to-be stepdaughters. "But Corey's gonna take you to the Rhino." Corey smirks: "This is where the night gets ugly."

LIP SERVICE

The Spearmint Rhino is, as Rick put it earlier, "The only strip club in this town that counts. There's a good 300 girls working there at night." "And only one ugly one," Corey adds. We head in through the back door and are immediately whisked into the champagne room. After blowing a day's pay over the course of a Ludacris song, I ask Corey about his tattoos. He has many, and I'm trying to fill the awkward silence that comes with two men visiting a strip club after knowing each other for seven hours. The first one he ever got is a clown painted like a skull, only because his parents said he couldn't. And his next one? "It's goin' on my face."

"Get one tonight," I dare. "If you get one on your face, then I'll get my first tattoo tonight." Immediately, I realize I've been foolish. Don't ever try to make a deal with a Pawn Star: "Yours has to be on your face, too." Before I know it, we've reached a compromise. An inner-lip tattoo, while technically on one's face, is entirely hidden from view. His will say H TOWN, for his hometown of Henderson, Nevada, and mine will read K TOWN as a shout-out to my own hood: Kensington, Maryland. Corey calls his guy, appropriately named Bad Apple Edd. "What's up? I'm at the Rhino right now. How do you feel about doin' two lip tattoos?"

We make the short drive to Edd's, and before I know it I'm in the chair. Edd takes my lip and turns on the gun—that terrifying, violent buzz that lets me know there's no turning back. Corey just grins.

Mel Brooks

A chat with the genius who brought us dancing monsters, the Schwartz, and the perfect fart joke. By Patrick Carone

In the early '50s, you were a writer for Sid Caesar along with comedy gods like Woody Allen, Neil Simon, and Carl Reiner. What was it like in the writers' room?

Everybody could pick up a bat and hit a home run. It was an amazing place, but we still had to struggle to make sure Sid's show was funny. Your Show of Shows was an hour and a half every week, and there were pantomimes, sketches, monologues, fake foreign movies...I don't know how we did it! Nobody could do that now. No living writers could ever produce that and get real laughs, too. There were no fake laughs like there are today.

Is it true that The Producers was based on a true story?

When I was about 17, I worked for a guy—I won't mention his name, because he has children and grandchildren—who used to make love to little old ladies on a cracked leather couch. He lived in his office, which was against the rules of the building. I was kind of his intern, because he never paid me much, but it was a thrill. I thought I was in show business! Anyway, he did what the characters in The Producers did on a very petty level. He'd raise maybe $1,000 more than he needed to put his production on, and then he lived on that money.

And the movie's original title was Springtime for Hitler?

It was, yeah. I thought, What would send the Jews scurrying? I couldn't use it, though, because I was told no one would put HITLER on a marquee. But the only time The Producers became a really big hit was on Broadway, as a musical. It never became a movie hit, ever.

Did George Lucas give you his blessing on Spaceballs?

He certainly did, but he gave me one incredibly big restriction: no action figures. He said, "Yours are going to look like mine." I said OK.

Would you ever do a Spaceballs musical?

I don't think so. It needs a big screen; it needs special effects. I do think Blazing Saddles would work onstage, though.

So can we expect a Blazing Saddles musical?

I'm thinking about it. I know there's a great song in the Waco Kid explaining being black to the sheriff. "Why don't they like me?" There's a song in that.

Richard Pryor was one of the writers on Blazing Saddles. How was it working with him?

Oh, I'd known Richard since 1948 from dirty little clubs in Greenwich Village. We found each other. Comedy writers hang out with other comedy writers. Comedy is like a very strange disease. We know we're afflicted, and we're the only ones who understand each other.

Why wasn't he in the movie?

I wanted Richard to be Black Bart, but I don't know—he was doing drugs and they wouldn't have him.

Do you think Blazing Saddles could get made today?

Never. The N-word alone would toss it out. But why not use it if these rednecks hated this black guy? How else could you express their hatred? "Oh, I hate that person of color." It ain't gonna work!

And it turned out to be your first hit.

People loved it. You know, I got an award at the Kennedy Center a few years ago, and President Obama said that when he was 12 years old, he snuck in to see Blazing Saddles, and it was one of the great experiences of his life.

Do you have any favorite directors?

My favorites are dead, but if Judd Apatow makes a movie, I won't miss it.

In your life, have you ever had any run-ins with the law?

When I was nine years old, I tried to steal a toy gun. I put it under my coat, and as I was leaving the store the manager grabbed me by the collar and said, "I'm going to call the police!" I didn't know what to do, so I reached into my coat, pulled out the gun, and said, "Step back or I'll blow your fucking head off."

So what do you think Hitler would say if he saw how you've portrayed him in your movies?

He'd say, "Dat guy is pretty talented, he does me good, ja. Spare him!" 🐔

FROST BITES!

Last January, 30-year-old Aussie adventurers Justin Jones and James Castrission became the first pair to take the 1,400-mile journey from the edge of Antarctica to the South Pole and back totally unsupported. This is their chilly, frostbite-y tale.

As told to DANIEL STEINER

illustration by TODD SCHMIDT

The least fun sleigh ride in recorded history

By the time Australian adventurers Justin Jones and James Castrission set out to make the first unsupported expedition to the South Pole and back, they'd already been best friends for half their lives. "We met at school when we were 15," says Castrission, a.k.a. Cas. "As the years progressed, we went from bushwhacking, climbing, and canyoning to bigger trips." In 2007 the pair took off for their biggest adventure yet: kayaking from Australia to New Zealand, a trip that took almost twice as long as they had planned and saw the team brave storms, lethal waves, and hungry sharks. They survived and immediately set their sights on the South Pole. ✱ "Adventure leads to adventure, and for me Antarctica has always held this starry-eyed fascination," says Cas. The South Pole has acted like a magnet for adventure seekers ever since Captain Cook first crossed the Antarctic Circle in 1773, and it's claimed more than its share of victims over the years. But no one had made it to the pole and back unassisted. Cas and Jonesy would have no support on their journey except each other. "Some people operate better alone and prefer their own company," says Cas. "I much prefer being out there with someone else—especially my best friend." Together the pair would face hunger, exhaustion, bitter cold, and hallucinations. Not that they'd have it any other way. "I guess you either get the appeal or you don't," says Cas. Here he recounts three months in the deadliest place on Earth.

✱ FROM LEFT

The Preparation

If I put it in the context of Charlie and the Chocolate Factory, what chocolate is to Augustus Gloop, Antarctica is for me. I used to love reading those stories from the heroic age of discovery 100 years ago, about explorers like Roald Amundsen and Ernest Shackleton pushing the limits of human endurance at the ends of the Earth, and I knew someday, some way, I'd do it myself. There's an appeal to the South Pole that has to do with its remoteness and mystery. It's a landmass larger than Canada that's completely desolate, with an environment as hostile as you'll find on this planet. And not only are temperatures brutally cold; it's also the windiest and driest place on Earth. The idea of an expedition down there really turned me on.

Any trip this intense is 95 percent planning and five percent execution. Jonesy and I trained and prepared over three and a half years. Our mantra was: fat, fit, and flexible. We had to be fat because we knew we would lose a lot of weight down there, and, indeed, over the course of the expedition we lost a combined 121 pounds.

Despite bulking up, we also had to be in the best shape of our lives—our sleds were close to 350 pounds when we started out, and when you're pulling that much weight for 12 hours a day, it completely rips your body apart. Over the 12 months prior to leaving Australia, we worked on our strength and conditioning for up to 30 hours a week. We also worked hard on flexibility, because we really couldn't afford injury. And 15 months before departure, we decided it might be a decent idea to learn how to ski, since neither of us had ever done it before and that's a useful skill in an environment covered in snow and ice.

Before Jonesy and I embarked on our kayaking expedition a few years ago, we asked the Australian army to put us through various sleep-deprivation exercises, pushing us to the point of collapse. We wanted to know how our bodies would react and what to expect in the most extreme conditions. We learned that when I hallucinate—and this happened in Antarctica—I see a 6'5" baby in diapers drinking out of a milk bottle. Needless to say, it completely freaked me out. Jonesy, on the other hand, would feel people touching him and trying to pull the ski pole or paddle out of his hands.

The one thing we couldn't prepare for in Australia was the cold. You go down to the Australian Alps and it might reach, at worst, 14°F. In Antarctica, for most of the expedition, we were looking at -22°F.

Once Bitten

Frostbite: It's all fun and games until your pinkie toe falls off.

WHAT IT IS

Skin cells freeze and die.

SIGNS YOU HAVE IT

1. A painful or prickly feeling
2. Numbness and loss of sensitivity
3. Discoloration
4. Blistering

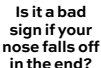

WHAT TO DO

If you can't get immediate medical care, soak the affected body part in warm—not hot—water. Don't rub the area, as this could cause further damage.

DID YOU REALLY NEED THAT PINKIE, ANYWAY?

No, but that little guy is super cute.

Jonesy celebrates Christmas in (relative) comfort; home sweet home; the pair celebrate reaching the South Pole. Sadly, no pole dancers were waiting for them.

A good, bombproof tent is another necessity. Days on end, the wind blew at 50-70 mph. If our tent had collapsed or been compromised, it would've been lights out for us. For three months a 63-cubic-foot tent was home, and it kept us alive. But even a quality tent is no good when nature calls. So...going to the bathroom: Let's just say you gotta do it bloody quick! You need to be super well-organized, and because the weight of the sleds was a major consideration, we could carry only a limited amount of toilet paper. That meant using ice and snow blocks when we ran out--and that stuff can be gravelly.

After 89 days we'd pushed ourselves so far that we were walking a tightrope between failure, collapse, and just scraping by. Our hands and feet were dying; we had infections running rampant over our bodies; our faces were smashed—our lips were caving in on themselves, and when we ate all we could taste was blood; the soles of our feet and our toes had filled up with pus, so every night we had to lance them. It had become a very dark state of affairs. Looking back now, I'm not sure how we pushed on. I guess we were so far beyond any expectations and boundaries we'd set for ourselves that we just kept going without thinking about it.

The Finish

When we finally reached our pickup point and knew we didn't have to ski the next day, I reflected on what we'd accomplished. Even then it was surreal, like, how the hell did we do that? Looking at the photos and footage now, I still can't quite understand how we got it done. This trip took us to places physically, mentally, and emotionally that we'd never been.

In terms of the physical toll, once we returned there was some nerve damage to our fingers and toes that took a while to recover from, and we had to set about putting that weight back on. The only lingering effect was a sense of fatigue that clings to you.

It's funny: My then fiancée picked us up from the airport, and when I got home and sat down at the dining table, I noticed this long to-do list. Our wedding was two weeks after I got back. My next adventure was about to begin! ❄️

the world's weir

Sick of the same shitty wings at the local sports bar? Tired of hearing sorority girls screech on the dance floor every time a remix of "Call Me Maybe" comes on? She's flown thousands of miles and put in hundreds of sleepless nights to bring you the 10 craziest bars in creation. So buckle up and keep a barf bag handy.

GRUYÈRES, SWITZERLAND

H.R. GIGER MUSEUM BAR

Have you ever wondered what it would feel like to imbibe in the belly of a fossilized prehistoric creature? Wonder no more: Alien set designer and apparent bone aficionado H.R. Giger designed this gloriously gothic bar. Pick your poison and enjoy some cheerful conversation. Make "Wanna bone?" jokes and you still get tossed out.

ELIAT, ISRAEL

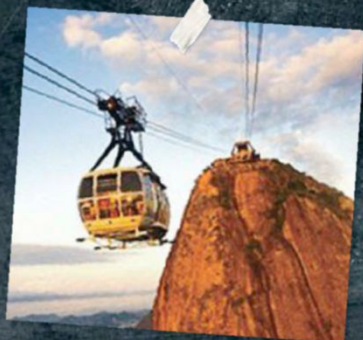

RED SEA STAR BAR

A cross between the Little Mermaid's treasure trove and a James Bond set, this very literal watering hole is submerged almost 20 feet below the Red Sea and reached only by crossing a 230-foot bridge from shore. Enter through a hatch above water and make your way downstairs to grab a table, each of which has windows (beside and above), so you and a date can drink like fish while gazing at them.

RIO DE JANEIRO, BRAZIL

SUGARLOAF KIOSK'S BAR

This mountaintop bar is accessible only two ways: a 65-passenger cable-car ride or a 1,299-foot climb to reach the top. It's steep, but the view is worth it, so suck it up, tubby. Grab a couple of caipirinhas at the bar and you won't feel a thing when you fall back down.

ZANZIBAR, TANZANIA

THE ROCK

Eat, drink, and tan at this picturesque seafood restaurant and bar that rises on a rock not far from the shores of Michanwi Pingwe beach. In really low tide, you can walk to it, but if the tide is up, you might have to swim (just realize that your chances of getting laid decline significantly if you show up in arm floaties).

LIMPOPO, SOUTH AFRICA

BAOBAB TREE BAR

Sorry, Pops, but this place puts your childhood tree house to shame. The bar is located inside a huge 72-foot-high, 6,000-year-old baobab tree. The woody wonder attracts tree huggers and beer chuggers alike.

PLAYA DEL CARMEN, MEXICO

ALUX

Feel like it's time to leave your tequila-swigging, spring-break-Mazatlan days behind and appreciate some of Mexico's natural beauty? Head to this 10,000-year-old cave and feign surprise that it's also a bar! Eat, drink, and enjoy thousands of stalactites and stalagmites for company.

MANILA, PHILIPPINES

HOBBIT HOUSE

Calling all fantasy freaks:

If the 37-hour director's cut DVD set isn't enough, then get your tiny-person fix at this Lord of the Rings-themed bar, which takes the concept very seriously and employs only little people. They love it, the locals love it, everyone loves it. (Except Sauron—he's a dick.)

TOKYO, JAPAN

ALICE IN WONDERLAND

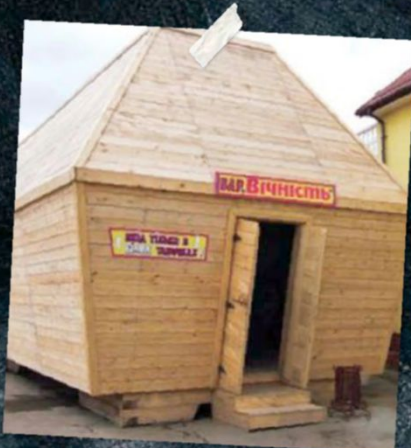

This place is based around Lewis Carroll's delirious story, with all the psychedelic decorations and costumes you might expect and more than a hundred different cocktails to choose from. Prepare for mental meltdown in its 2,254-square-foot space. Also, prepare for the bill: Zaniness don't come cheap!

TRUSKAVETS, UKRAINE

ETERNITY

What makes the world's largest coffin exponentially more exciting than the largest ball of twine? The fact that the 66-foot-long, 20-foot-wide, and 20-foot-high casket is actually a bar run by undertakers. A little morbid, but we hear people are dying to get in.

STOCKHOLM, SWEDEN

THE JUMBO STAY

Join the mile-high club without ever leaving the ground! Found on a disused runway in Sweden, this hostel-bar is inside an old 747 jet (gets you better legroom than a standard 747 jet). Don't go just for drinks—stay the weekend in one of its economy-versions-of-Air Force One suites. If you abide by the dress code (pilots and stewardesses), you may even get the keys to the cockpit.

Should I bother wishing my ex a happy birthday?

Nick Madi

If you have a current girlfriend, you don't want to go there. Don't text, don't Facebook, don't tweet, because all it's going to do is create problems. But if you're single and a little lonely, it can't hurt to give her a call.

What ingredients are necessary for an awesome omelet?

Andy Krasinski

Multiple strips of crispy bacon.

What's the best way to get rid of raccoons?

Ross Mallace

Just start throwing your trash into your neighbors' cans; then the raccoons will be their problem.

Can a guy get away with using air freshener instead of cologne?

Richard Cohen

Sure, but you may be mistaken for a cabdriver.

I might get a pet bird. Are girls into that?

Jason Seccomb

Not the kind of girls you'd want to sleep with. Birds are messy and loud; I can't even imagine anyone who would be into that.

→ What was the most popular lunch item today?

The hot dogs disappeared quickly, but the office went crazy for the strawberries with whipped cream, which were the healthiest item on the menu.

Did you sample the items you served?

Of course! Not to mention I stayed up all night baking that cake. Today I didn't even have time to sit down and eat lunch. The guys kept yelling out orders, and I was running around all day.

Maybe all the second helpings had something to do with your outfit?

Maybe. You know what? I thought I saw one guy sneak a hot dog into his drawer!

Is there anything you plan on adding to the Maxim menu?

I like to bake, so next time I'll bring some of my signature chocolate chip cookies...but only if you guys behave.

Have you worked any other jobs in the food industry?

Actually, my worst job was working the drive-through at McDonald's. I couldn't stand the uniform. Maybe they'll institute some changes after they see what the Maxim lunch ladies wear.

What can a guy do to get you to make him a home-cooked meal?

Well, I seem to be into the good boys, and they'll usually end up getting breakfast in bed.

"We decline credit cards every night. Your bank will put a hold on it because they'll think it's fraud. It'll put a huge glitch in your night."

RESPECT YOUR SERVER.

"Remember that this is our job every night. We're not there celebrating your bachelor party. Go hit on the drunk girls."

ASK AND RECEIVE.

"We'll get girls to your table. Guys might want tall blondes, short brunettes, or a mix. I do give the girls a rundown of the guys, by the way. Us girls have to stick together!"

Dr. Winnifred Cutler: Creator of 10X

10X™ GETS YOU MORE AFFECTION FROM WOMEN

ATHENA PHEROMONE 10X

unscented cologne / aftershave additive

♥ Ben (FL) "I have always had moderate success with women, but the difference is astonishing. I am a college student and am now having 3 times the [intimate] encounters I used to...simply amazing. I have never dated more than one woman at a time. I am currently dating 4, so either all the women at my school are changing, or it's the 10X."

♥ Clint (TX) "This stuff is fantastic. It is the most potent stuff I ever used. I walked into a bar...I sat down by myself watching a ball game. Within 20 minutes, I had 8 waitresses and the owner's wife coming over to me, hanging out. This 10X...I am telling you, you've got an absolute winner here! Three of the girls were asking me for my phone number."

Created by Winnifred Cutler, Ph.D. in biology from U. Penn, post-doc Stanford. Co-discovered human pheromones in 1986 (Time 12/1/86; and Newsweek 1/12/87).

athenainstitute.com

Athena 10X is designed to enhance your sex-appeal. Vial of 1/6 oz. added to 2-3 oz. of your cologne or aftershave lasts 4 to 6 months, or use straight. Contains synthesized human sex-attractant pheromones.

Effective for 74% in 8-week published scientific study. Not guaranteed to work for all, since body chemistries differ, but will work for most. Cosmetics not aphrodisiacs.

Not in stores. Call (610) 827-2200 - Click or send to: Athena Institute, Dept MX 1211 Braefield Rd. Chester Spgs, PA 19425

Beyoncé

Long before she became Mrs. Jay-Z, this angelic Houstonite with the bootylicious body and fierce pipes was at the top of our list of one-named hotties (sorry, Fabio). As the centerpiece of Destiny's Child, Beyoncé ruled the charts before moving to Hollywood and making movies much more pleasing to look at. And as for her upcoming Super Bowl halftime show—God, if you're listening, would it be possible to arrange for one more "wardrobe malfunction"?
